NEWS IN BRIEF

WOMEN WOULD BEAR ARMS RAISE FUNDS FOR WAR

Ethiopia recruits thousands as warriors answer the call to arms, believing war inevitable. One of their high officials said: "It would appear Premier Benito Mussolini has gone so far that he cannot withdraw now." Emperor Selassie held an all-night conference with his tribal chieftains but disclosed no decisions. New troops from distant mountains and desert strongholds continue to arrive, while the women continue demands to bear arms for their country. Denied that right, and led by the Emperor's daughter, Princess Tsahay, the Association for the Defense of the Country, started raising funds and subscribed $30,000 within an hour. Mohammedan women contributed alike with Christians.

Floods, as in Hankow, China, when 10,000 lives were lost, 1,600,000 in flood peril and 100,000 made homeless, and the ones in various parts of America, have followed the usual sunspot cycle, say the scientists. The N. Y. American states that "a few natural scientists have stated they could put their finger on the spots passing across the face of the sun and trace storms following definite paths across the northern United States. They have indisputable evidence, unbroken for the past 30,000 years, that the rains on earth increase when the sunspots increase. What they do not know yet is the year when to predict increased rain along with increased sunspots. The new sunspot cycle began a little more than a year ago, and the rains since then are running true to the 30,000-year form. The spots are magnetic storms in the sun's atmosphere."

Washington, (N. Y. Am.)—The price of lemons, has skyrocketed in the United States in the last month, asserted because of Premier Mussolini's preparation for war in Ethiopia. Governmental officials said an actual shortage of lemons was due to complete cessation of imports from Europe, where almost the entire supply is being diverted into Eritrea to keep thousands of Italian troops from getting scurvy. The average price of lemons in the United States jumped from 23.6 cents a dozen to 31.7 cents at the height of the European shortage.

London—The royal commission, acting for King George V, gave the King's consent to the government bill granting self-government and partial independence to India. The bill would cede 1,100,000 square miles of 600 states, governed by native princes, into a federation with autonomy for provincial governments. Britain retains control of defense, internal (police) order, and foreign affairs. The measure affects 350 million persons.

Berlin, Newark Evening Post.—Count Lutz Schwerin von Krosigk, finance minister of Germany, ordered all employees of his department to report by Sept. 1, whether they belong, or have belonged to the Masonic lodge or similar institutions. Those who reported themselves members, he decreed, could not be promoted—official intimation that membership was disapproved by Nazism.

Washington, (AP)—The arm of the justice department is expected to reach out soon to protect the small town bank, long victimized by America's 5,000 known bank robbers. The "G" men collared nearly 140 robbers of national banks last year.

The House committee refused approval of the "midget money" bill presented by Secretary Morgenthau for the issue of half-cent and mill pieces on the ground that it gave the treasury too broad authority.

In a recent cold wave in Argentina, zero temperature swept across the southern tip of the American continent, damaging crops in central and northern Argentina. Snow storms swept Patagonia and the Andes while farther north wheat, flax and sugar cane suffered.

League of Nations sources were informed that dysentery had broken out among Italian troops massed in East Africa. The number of cases was said to total 15,000.

Warsaw—About 14 persons were killed and 16 injured when an old house, the birthplace of Marie Curie, co-discoverer of radium, collapsed.

Advisory Grazing Board Holds Lengthy Meeting

The Grazing Committee of District Six, met at the county court house Monday, August 12, where they held several day and night sessions. Most of the daylight hours Monday, were taken up by a discussion of rules and regulations and their interpretation. J. Q. Peterson occupied the chair during the morning's proceedings but when all major questions had been agreed upon, he relinquished his post to L. L. Taylor, who was elected general chairman of the board at a recent meeting at Moab. Only Committee members and press representatives were admitted to the morning meeting.

Monday evening an executive session occupied the committee, as did the meetings Tuesday and Wednesday. New applications for grazing permits were received and action was taken on those which had already been filed.

To facilitate the committee's labors in determining the location and extent of grazing areas within the district, a large colored map was displayed on the wall of the room which showed by its coloring, areas designated as public domain, those lands on which there has been made homestead filings, and state and county owned lands.

Many applications were passed upon and the decision of the committee concerning applications will be mailed to applicants in the form of a post card.

One Free use committee chairman L. L. Taylor, who is editor of the Times Independent at Moab left the meeting early Wednesday evening being called by newspaper duties, but returned this morning.

Two Day Party Held On Mountain

A large party of men and women, the guests of Bill Young of Blanding enjoyed a two-day outing at Camp Jackson over the week-end. A number of Blanding and Monticello people were in attendance and enjoyed a program of stunts, and humorous speeches during the evening hours. Among the high-lights of the occasion are said to be the discourse on teeth (false and otherwise) made by Frank Halls who exhibited several pairs which he allegedly had bought, none of which fit him at all. The piece de resistance during the outing was fresh beef which was prepared at the camp. (We have not learned whether soup was prepared for Mr. Halls, or not.)

While enjoying the outing the party visited the Ray Bush family at the Home of Truth Mountain Top mine. They returned home Sunday having been in camp since Friday. Among the Monticello people present were: Mr. and Mrs. (Frank) Halls, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Keller, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Hansen, Mr. and Mrs. Dan Perkins, Mr. and Mrs. Karl Barton and Dr. W. H. Hardy of Salt Lake City.

ANTICIPATES INVASION SECRETES TREASURES

Anticipating an Italian invasion, Emperor Selassie has ordered the country's valuable crown jewels and ecclesiastical treasures removed to the mountains for safe keeping. These church treasures are said to include the Tablets of Law received by Moses on Mt. Sinai as well as the ark of the Covenant.

Bo's reputedly were brought to Ethiopia from Jerusalem by Menelik, according to Ethiopian history the son of King Solomon and the Queen of Sheba, and founder of the present Ethiopian dynasty. The royal treasures include the solid gold crown worn by the emperor and empress at their coronation in 1931, as well as the beautiful gold necklace said to have been given to the Queen of Sheba by Solomon in Biblical times.

Gloucester, Mass.—Eighteen patents covering improvements in the method of recording sound have been granted John Hays Hammond, Jr., noted electrical engineer. Heretofore it has been impossible to record sound without certain defects being apparent but the Hammond system, known as "the dynamic multiplier, provides for an automatic filter which will not suppress sound at high frequency. Dr. Hammond has spent six years in this research.

GRAZING ASSOCIATION WILL HOLD MEETING

A director's meeting of the San Juan Grazing Association will be held in Monticello August 17, according to Chas. Redd, president of the association. The meeting will be for the purpose of discussing allotments, range rules and practices and also the acquisition of the districts east of Monticello for use as summer range. Directors of the organization are: F. W. Keller, Claud Young, J. M. Bailey, Geo. W. Perkins, Floyd Nielson, R. L. Hyde, Gilbert Hansen and J. A. Scorp.

RED CROSS FEATURE IN FT. DUCHESNE CONVENTION

Red Cross services to humanity, with special emphasis on health and first aid to the injured, was emphasized by representatives of the National Red Cross at the Utah Basin Industrial Convention at Fort Duchesne, Utah August 6-8, according to A. L. Schafer, Red Cross manager in the Pacific area.

Mrs. Mabel Axline, Utah field representative, and H. P. Terwilliger, first aid and life-saving field representative, were present to direct the Red Cross participation in the Utah Basin Convention.

Mrs. Axline addressed divisional meetings at 8:30 a. m. on "Organization of Red Cross Services" and again at 2:30 p. m. she told teachers all about the Junior Red Cross work in the schools.

First aid demonstrations were given from 8:30 to 10 a. m. daily by Mr. Terwilliger. He spoke before the general assembly Wednesday morning, August 7. His subject was "A Functioning Set-Up to Meet all Emergencies."

A Red Cross pictorial exhibit was shown. Activities include phases of disaster relief, hospital service to veterans, public health nursing, home hygiene and care of the sick, volunteer service, such as the production of clothing for needy families, hospital bandages, emergency closets that contain sick-room supplies, and the Junior Red Cross.

OLD CATHOLIC CHURCH MOVED THANKS TO HELP EXPRESSED

The old Catholic church was moved last week from its position in front of the new building, to a location directly back of the new church. Ross Purcell and Levi Holt moved the old church building with their trucks, and Overseer J. P. Gonzalez, who has charge of the work, express for the Catholic congregation here, their appreciation of the help given in the work.

The new edifice is nearing completion now with a carpenter doing the interior finishing. The laying of stens and pointing up the masonry on the outside will soon be done which will finish the outside work.

The Spanish American people may well be proud of their new church building, which is of modern construction throughout and is of ample size to accommodate the Catholic population and considerable increase for some time to come. The little church which has been used for so long still serves as a place of worship as it will, until the finer building is completed.

LOW-GRADE URANIUM IS BEING SHIPPED

H. W. Balsley, Moab mining man, is preparing to ship a carload of low grade uranium ore to Pittsburgh, Penna., where final tests will be made to determine the feasibility of erecting a concentrating plant at Moab. This car of ore is to be shipped for testing purposes, and if satisfactory results are obtained, a plant will probably be erected near Moab.

Bishop and Mrs. A. J. Redd have gone on an extended vacation trip to the northwest which may take them as far as Alaska. Yesterday they were in Vancouver from where they hoped to be able to book passage to Alaska on a steamer. With them are Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Holdway, also Utah people. Mrs. Holdway is a sister of Mrs. Redd.

Mrs. W. D. Hyde is acting as night nurse for the Manzanarez children who are very ill with typhoid fever.

COURT ADJOURNS WAS BUSY SESSION

The second term of the District Court of the Seventh Judicial District with Judge Dillworth Woolley presiding, adjourned Saturday. A considerable number of cases came before the court during this term.

Among cases coming before the district court at this session were: the case of Ezra Dalton vs. Geo. W. Dalton, which was continued for the term.

In the case of Boyd S. Hammond vs. J. H. Johnson, the court ordered that Julia Hills Johnson, executrix of the estate of J. H. Johnson, deceased, be substituted as a party defendant in place of J. H. Johnson who had died since commencement of the trial.

In the trial in which the State of Utah, prosecuted Gonzalo Gonzales, on a charge of second degree burglary, the defendant was not represented by counsel and Attorney F. E. Hammond was appointed as defense counsel with F. W. Keller, retreating the state. The defendant plead guilty as charged and was sentenced by Judge Dillworth Woolley to serve not less than one, nor more than 20 years in the state penitentiary.

In the action of Leona J. Nielson, executrix, et al., vs. Jens P. Nielson, et al., a defense representative moved for a continuance of the case on the grounds of the sickness of Jens P. Nielson. The court ordered that further proceedings in connection with the case be postponed until Sept. 23.

In the case of Mark Hammond, plaintiff, vs. the Blue Mountain Irrigation Co., demurrer to plaintiffs answer came up for hearing. Court ordered demurrer sustained, and the defense was allowed 15 days to file amended answer.

In the case of the Town of Monticello vs. Blue Mountain Irrigation Co., et al., the case was set for trial on Sept. 23, 1935.

In the matter of the Estate of Roland P. Adams, deceased, petition of Mrs. Inez Adams, administratrix of the estate praying for settlement of her final account and for the distribution of the residue of said estate to the proper parties, the court ordered petition granted, provided no objection is filed within the time stated by the order.

C. R. Christensen, et al, plaintiffs, vs. J. M. Bailey et al, defendants. Plaintiff made motion for leave to file an amended reply in the case as of the date of the trial came on for hearing. The motion was granted in part to wit: That plaintiffs be allowed to file the amended reply as of this date.

In the case of Boyd S. Hammond vs. J. H. Johnson, et al, which came on for hearing on plaintiffs motion to amend findings of fact as indicated in said motion court ordered that findings of fact and conclusions of law be amended as indicated by the court.

In the action of Olive H. Smith, vs. Marie M. Ogden, F. B. Hammond and Donald T. Adams, attorneys for plaintiff, notified F. W. Keller, attorney for the defense that they do now withdraw as attorneys for plaintiff.

The case of Olive H. Smith vs. Marie M. Ogden was called for trial by the court, but as there was no appearance on the part of any of the parties to the action, the court, upon its own motion, ordered that the case be continued for the term for want of prosecution.

In the matter of the Estate of Nehhi Bailey, deceased, petition of Ralph A. Bailey, praying issuance to himself of letters of administration upon the property of Nehhi Bailey, deceased, the court granted the petition as prayed for unless legal objection is made.

In the matter of the estate of Howard Andrew Scott, deceased, the petition for issuance to himself of letters of administration upon property of Howard A. Scott, was granted.

In the matter of the estate of Wm. Hart, Laws, deceased, petition of Julian A. Laws, the executor of the estate praying for settlement of his final account and for the distribution of residue of said estate, was granted, provided no objection is filed within the time stipulated by order of the court.

BIG INDIAN CELEBRATION TO BE HELD AT BLUFF

On August 19 and 20 the big Navaho-Hi will be held at Bluff with both Navajos and Utes participating in the ceremonial dancing and horse races. There will be a dance each evening and a boxing card will give added entertainment to lovers of the sport.

M'DANIELS ARRAIGNED AT DURANGO. FEAR LYNCHING

Rumors were rife in Colorado early this week, that the McDaniel brothers would be taken to Cortez, and that if such were the case, it was feared that the pair would be lynched.

Attorney James Noland of Durango allayed fears that such a thing was imminent, by declaring that the brothers had been arraigned and then spirited away to the state penitentiary. Last Sunday Sheriff Robinson of Cortez, attempted to choke Otis McDaniel as the brothers were being questioned.

Although the McDaniels are charged with killing Sheriff Dunlap on July 15, they will not be tried at this time on that charge, but will be tried for the slaying of James Westfall, a Cortez rancher, some time before the slaying of the Colorado sheriff. Date of trial is set for Sept. 9th, and will be held at Cortez, Colorado.

FAMILY MAKES TRIP DOWN GREEN

Paul Ackerly, and son and daughter, Robert and Luana, successfully made the trip from Green River to Moab last week in a sixteen foot boat powered by an outboard motor. It is said they at first intended to come up from Lees Ferry to Moab in their boat. This is, of course, impossible. The portion of the river they negotiated is the least dangerous of any between Moab or Green River and Lees Ferry. Huge rapids intervene to check attempts at navigation in motor boats below the confluence of the Green and Colorado.

J. P.; J. P. Jr.; "J. P." Members Same Family

In our account of the sentence of young Gonzalo Gonzales, last week we hastily used the young man's best known designation, which is "J. P." Schoolmates, townsmen and even his parents called the young man by those initials, which belong not to him, but to his father and to his older brother. We do not wish to create the impression that either of the latter were in the toils of the law.

J. P. Senior is commonly known as Purdencio, as is J. P. Junior. Mr. Gonzales Senior is one of the most trusted and respected members of our Spanish American group of citizens and so we hasten to explain that our story concerning "J. P." Gonzales, in last week's issue was about the youth commonly known by that title and not about the father or the older brother.

5,000 TONS FOODSTUFFS DISTRIBUTED IN UTAH

Nearly 10,000,000 pounds of 20 varieties of foodstuffs, in addition to thousands of pieces of bedding and wearing apparel, have been distributed to the needy of Utah by the federal surplus relief corporation through the state relief organization since October 10, 1933, it has shown in a report released Friday by Glen D. Reese, Utah director of surplus commodities.

Mr. Reese explained the methods used by the corporation and said its general policy was to purchase and distribute basic and essential commodities. He estimated the total value of the commodities, based on Salt Lake wholesale prices, at $1,663,979 and fixed the cost of distribution from railroads or storage places to needy persons at 7.34 per cent of the wholesale value.

The commodity director pointed out that all of the flour, a large amount of the lard, evaporated and dried milk, smoked meat, and sugar was processed in Utah plants and all of the eggs were purchased in Utah.

INDUSTRIAL TRENDS

Recent demand in copper, exceptionally heavy. Price advances forecast by some.

In the machine tool industry there has been a tremendous gain registered in dollar volume. Index recently touched 91 per cent of the 1926 average—best level since 1929.

Motor reports continue to be good. Passenger car sales for the first half of the year ran about 45 per cent ahead of the same period in 1934. In June, Ford sold the most cars for that month since 1920. Chevrolet surpassed it June records since 1929.

The highest power consumption since the latter part of 1931 was recently shown.

Steel production is at 40 per cent capacity, a substantial advance over a few months ago.

Retail trade has held steady in the summer, avoiding the usual seasonal drop.

THE OLD SETTLER

(By Albert R. Lyman.)

Not only the people of San Juan but travelers from far away are struck with the extensive traces of the nation who lived and built here long ago. Especially are they lured to silence and wonderment by proof of some gigantic tragedy which left the country a desolate ruin.

Crumbling walls, overgrown and half hidden roadways and strange hieroglyphics on the gray faces of many remote cliffs, will one day be made to yield their story. "Truth will speak again out of the dust."

But it is already speaking. Marco Polo was not here, neither was Du Chailu, and no printed page of history or travel relates the gripping story of destruction which left San Juan a wilderness after it had been a fruitful field.

Yet that story is told as positively as it could be told in books, and it remains for such magic translators as Andrew Elliot Douglas to begin reading the record, and giving out the particulars as they stand engraved on the old elements.

From old houses in miles and miles of gulch walls, and from brush-grown mounds in a thousand fallen dwellings on the prairie, a shadow of ancient conflict seems to rise in restless persistence from the white ashes.

The people of the prairie guarded their crops night and day from the ravages of robber hordes hiding like rats among the rocks. High in the cliffs and in deep caves they had places of security to run with their plunder.

At harvest time the farmers had to contend fiercely both in the light and the darkness for what they had raised. Many a gray dawn disclosed traces of stubborn conflict and mangled bodies lay sprawling in trampled fields.

And then came the great drought in the last quarter of the thirteenth century. Nothing like it ever before or since. Summer rain fell no more, the ground lay bare all winter.

Old springs diminished in volume and others went entirely dry. Desperation frowned from the hillsides. Goaded with hunger the fight for food became a fight for life.

The robbers from the cliffs began traveling in packs like wolves and contending with each other every haul. They made bold to destroy not only the little farm-homes, but they attacked the so-called castles for the precious food which had been taken there for safety.

Ravenous teeth ate not only the corn from the dobs, but gnawed the stalks. Disease and death followed in the wake of the famine, yet no rain fell.

Even the trees stopped growing. Frantic multitudes wailed from the flat roofs of sooths castles in all sections of the country. Individual homes were no more. The people gathered with whatever they could find to eat and prepared to endure a siege from the starving robbers. Stones and arrows whizzed savagely between them. Plots and treachery and torture made life a hideous dream.

Disease and starvation raced for the mastery, and sometimes treacherous battle raged within the crowded walls to the delight of the howling assailants outside.

Each sooths became desolate in his own castle unless indeed, he was stabbed by a rival or thrown by mutineers from the topmost wall.

The robber packs united in restless mobs, demolishing one castle after another. Sometimes the sooths with part of his people escaped, sometimes they fell in gory heaps within their defenses. The impoverished remnant naked and starving, straggled off in wretched companies to the south and east, dragging their miserable dependents after them, yet no rain fell. The drought carried on into the years. The robbing packs hunted the last food caches of the departed farmers and then in desperation followed after them for more plunder.

Roadways blew full of sand, desolation and silence reigned over the old earth stones. After twenty years when rain fell again in torrents it washed the mud from between the rocks of the masonry, the walls crumbled, trees and brush sprang up among them, making the once happy dwelling an obscure mound.

A dark curtain fell on the big drama. It raised again during the centuries for other dramas on the same stage, and at length it raised for the drama we are watching today and in which we are so much absorbed we think it the only play of any consequence ever enacted on this stage.

Rash on Baby Caused Constant Irritation

Relieved by Cuticura

"About three months after my baby was born, eczema broke out all over her body. It came out in a rash and was very red. It caused constant irritation and loss of sleep so that I had to put gloves on her hands, to prevent scratching. I could not bathe her.

"For nearly two years this eruption lasted. Then I read about Cuticura Soap and Ointment, and sent for a free sample. I bought more, and after using two boxes of Ointment with the Soap she was relieved completely of the itching." (Signed) Mrs. Raymond Parks, 1409 Massachusetts Ave., North Adams, Mass.

SYNOPSIS

The luck that brought the Boston Lawrences to California at the beginning of the gold rush has deserted the present generation. From a 4,000-acre ranch, their holdings have shrunk to a small farm, and the old family home in Clipperville, Phil, now twenty-five, has gone into the iron works. Gail, the public library and Edith, the book department of a store. Sam is in school, and seventeen-year-old Ariel is becoming a problem. Phil is fascinated by "that terrible" Lily Cass, whose husband has deserted her. Young Van Murchison, son of a wealthy family, returns from Yale, and Gail has visions through marriage with him, of the turning of the Lawrence luck. Dick Stebbins, Phil's friend, has the run of the house. Ariel is sneaking out of the house at night for joy rides. Phil suggests, to his sisters' consternation, that they invite Lily Cass to the house. Gail goes with Van for a week-end with the Chipps, his uncle and aunt. She is received coldly. At a roadhouse Gail sees Ariel, at midnight. Next day Ariel admits she was at the place, and displays no remorse. Gail again accompanies Van to Los Gatos for a week-end visit. A policeman brings Ariel home, announcing that a child has been killed in an automobile smashup. Ariel was driving one of the cars.

In the icy grip of horror and fear they all ran together up the kitchen steps, across the dark porch.

Ariel opened the door of the inner passage as the others rushed in from the porch, and stood at bay, facing them. She spoke impatiently, a note of reproach and complaint in her voice.

"Where were you, Gail? I've been hunting—I've been all over everywhere!"

"You're hurt!" Gail whispered, beside her.

"No, I'm not hurt at all, and for heaven's sake don't make such a fuss!" Ariel said quickly.

"Oh, it's you, Fargo?" Dick said to the policeman. "I didn't recognize you out there. Been an accident, eh?"

"Hello, Mr. Stebbins," the policeman said with a sort of deliberate solemnity. "Yes, sir. There's been a bad smash. There was a little girl killed. Mr. Lawrence. They took her to the hospital, but later we heard she—"

The officer coughed respectfully. "She passed out on the way," he finished simply. "Miss Lawrence and the feller that was driving the other car are booked on a charge of manslaughter, Mr. Stebbins. The judge is going to see them in the morning. I presume—" He cleared his throat. "I presume for an investigation," he added mildly. "It was a question of bail."

"I see," Dick said. "I'll be right down. I'll take care of everything. I'll be right over."

"Why, take your time, take your time," the officer, departing, said in a faintly protesting note.

"Manslaughter," Phil said slowly, in the dead silence that followed his going. "What happened?" he demanded, sitting down heavily in the old kitchen rocker, his eyes never leaving Ariel's.

"Why, just this," Ariel began, in a voice she tried to make sound easy and natural. "A drunken idiot drove his car out into the middle of the traffic and forced our car over against the other side of the road, and we hit the car this little girl was in. That's all."

"I had no more to do with it than—well, Sam, here! This man—he was drunk—cut in from behind a bus, and came straight at us. They said he was going fifty an hour. He headed right at us and we swerved to the right, do you see?—and this child was in the car we hit. It sort of swung 'round, and all the cars jammed, and every one shouted."

Dick, who had followed the policeman out of the room for a few private words, had returned to the kitchen.

"It looks to me, from what Fargo says, as if it was up to the other fellow," Dick said now, sitting down beside Gail on the end of the table.

"Whose child was it, Dick?"

"Moss. A little girl named Janet Moss. Five years old."

"Five years old. My G—d!"

"I don't know why you all look at me. I agree with you that it's simply terrible!" Ariel said quickly and hotly. "But you don't think I'm—I'm enjoying it!"

"Oh, shut up," Phil commanded her, brushing the little spurt of temper aside, his dark look not brightening.

"But—but Ariel wasn't to blame, Phil! It wasn't her fault, Dick. Why—why should they—why should they want to take her to jail?" Gail demanded, turning from one of the men to the other.

"It's what they call a technical charge. Now, let's keep cool, everybody," Dick said, "and find out just where we stand. In the first place, what time was this, Ariel?"

"Ten minutes to six."

"And you and Buddy Ralsch and the Barchi boy were in the car?"

"In Buddy's roadster."

"Was Dorothy Camp there?"

"No. Not then."

"Where was she?"

"Left you?"

"If you'll give me a chance," Ariel interrupted the interrogation with bitter patience, "I'll try to tell you. But I can't get anywhere if you keep looking as if I'd done all this as a joke!"

There was no answer to this. But

Phil said drily, as if thinking aloud, "God knows it's no joke!"

"You weren't driving, Ariel?" Gail asked in a sick tone.

"Yes, I was."

"You don't know how to drive!"

"Oh, yes, I do."

"Good G—d!" Phil whispered under his breath.

"Ariel—not when it happened—you weren't driving then?"

"I say I was, Gail." Ariel's weary, colorless face cracked with an unnatural smile; she looked about the circle scornfully, almost sneeringly.

"You all look so funny!" she gasped, shaking, trying to laugh. "You all take—things—so d—n seriously!"

Gail tightened an arm about her shoulders.

"Pull yourself together, Ariel!" she said sharply. "You've gotten us all into horrible trouble, and been partly responsible for a little girl's death, and if you can't take it seriously, why, we can, that's all. What were you doing driving Buddy Ralsch's car? Are you crazy?"

"I've told you what I was doing. We were coming back from Monterey, and Buddy was sleepy, and so was Larry, and I was driving. We were in the middle lane, where you have a perfect right to be on that hill, and the bus was coming up—and I saw it perfectly well, and I knew the line, and the right was where it was, and I was driving along, about twenty-five, I guess, when this drunk came lunging out from behind the bus, straight into my face, and of course I had to jerk right—I couldn't jerk left into the bus, and I couldn't stop because of the cars behind me. The car—the car this drunk Miller was driving—came head on, and hit our guards and smashed the headlights. They said it was badly smashed, but the man wasn't hurt, and at first I don't think they thought anyone was hurt. And then they saw this little girl on the grass."

"Why wasn't Buddy driving, Ariel?" Gail asked, very gently, in a silence.

"He was sleepy, I told you. We were all up late last night, dancing. We were over at Monterey. We just went there for dinner, Buddy and Larry and Dorothy and I. And then we stayed and danced. We were going to come home last night, but it was too late, so we stayed. Buddy felt sort of sick, anyway. He had some oysters or something."

"After Gail went to Los Gatos you said you were going to Santa Cruz to

Phil said drily, as if thinking aloud, "God knows it's no joke!"

"You weren't driving, Ariel?" Gail asked in a sick tone.

"Yes, I was."

"You don't know how to drive!"

"Oh, yes, I do."

"Good G—d!" Phil whispered under his breath.

"Ariel—not when it happened—you weren't driving then?"

"I say I was, Gail." Ariel's weary, colorless face cracked with an unnatural smile; she looked about the circle scornfully, almost sneeringly.

"You all look so funny!" she gasped, shaking, trying to laugh. "You all take—things—so d—n seriously!"

Gail tightened an arm about her shoulders.

"Pull yourself together, Ariel!" she said sharply. "You've gotten us all into horrible trouble, and been partly responsible for a little girl's death, and if you can't take it seriously, why, we can, that's all. What were you doing driving Buddy Ralsch's car? Are you crazy?"

"I've told you what I was doing. We were coming back from Monterey, and Buddy was sleepy, and so was Larry, and I was driving. We were in the middle lane, where you have a perfect right to be on that hill, and the bus was coming up—and I saw it perfectly well, and I knew the line, and the right was where it was, and I was driving along, about twenty-five, I guess, when this drunk came lunging out from behind the bus, straight into my face, and of course I had to jerk right—I couldn't jerk left into the bus, and I couldn't stop because of the cars behind me. Phil said drily, as if thinking aloud, "God knows it's no joke!"

"And then, Ariel?"

"Dorothy and I were so scared we cried, and she was going to telephone her mother. But we thought that wouldn't do. So we locked our door and went to bed. Dorothy and I went to sleep; I don't know when the boys got in; they were on another floor, anyway. We got up early this morning, and walked around Monterey. And we met the boys—they were all shaved and dressed and sober, of course, and they felt so sorry that we sort of forgave them, and we all went to breakfast, and then we were coming straight home. We packed and we got started at about eleven, but we stopped at the Del Monte links to see some of the golf."

"We had some sandwiches at Los Gatos, at about three, and we came on over the Dumbarton bridge, and Buddy kept feeling sicker and sicker, and Larry was half asleep. Finally Dorothy said to stop the car for a minute, and she jumped out and said she was going to take a bus. She said the way Larry was driving we'd have an accident."

"No bus goes by there, anyway. But after a few minutes Dorothy signaled a car with a man and woman in it, and got in—I didn't think she really meant to, and Larry didn't, and it made us pretty mad."

"You were alone with the two boys, then, Ariel?"

"Yes, and Larry kept getting sleepier and sleepier."

"Then what happened?"

"Then Larry asked me to take the wheel, and said he'd sit right beside me and help me out if I got into a jam. I've had the wheel lots of times. So we changed places. We were only seven miles out, and all I wanted to do—"

Her voice thickened, stopped.

"All I wanted to do was get home," she said. "I drove along—you couldn't go fast in that traffic—just keeping my place in the line, when the car ahead of me jumped forward and got clear, and this crazy drunk lunged up in front of me."

"There was the—most—awful—crashing of glass and wood," she whispered, putting her head back, closing her eyes. "Every one began to shout and scream. They saw the little girl, and a man asked me if my car had hit her, and I said—I said I didn't know. I saw a man pick her up, and her hat sort of dropped back. . . ."

"Oh, my G—d!" Edith whispered in the pause.

"My car was jammed against theirs," Ariel said. "But there didn't seem to be much harm done. The police came up and they asked to see my license, and Buddy said that it was at home. But afterward at the station I told them I didn't have any. That was right, wasn't it, Dick?" Ariel asked with an appealing look.

"Well, of course!" Dick answered impatiently.

"They held us on a manslaughter charge," the innocent, hoarse young voice went on. "They wanted me to telephone home, but I wouldn't."

The recital was over. There was silence in the kitchen; no Lawrence could speak.

"I'll go right around," Dick said, glancing at his wrist. "Now, don't take this too hard. It happens all the time. If they can hang it on him that he was drunk and that Ariel had the right of way they'll not hold her."

Gail's heart went to him, the big, homely, gentle, adequate friend and champion of the family, with so passionate a rush that she felt an emotion like a physical pain in her breast.

Ariel came, white and weary and young, and stood before Dick and put her hands on his shoulders.

"Will you get me out, Dick?" she faltered.

"Why, sure I will!" he said, a little gruffly, smiling down at her as a big dog might look down on a puppy.

"I didn't mean to do it!" she whispered, her mouth trembling, her face crinkling into tears. And then in sudden irritation and disgust she exclaimed, "Gail, Gail, I'm going to be sick!"

"I thought so!" Gail sprang across the room. She and Edith had an arm, apiece about the convulsed, slender little figure as they rushed it to the familiar sanctuary of the upper rooms.

Ten minutes later Gail went with Dick to the police station.

"I think it would look—better, to have one of you girls along," Dick suggested. Sam was left with Ariel; Edith and Phil went to call at the stricken home of the dead child.

"I'm—I'm terribly sorry about this," Dick presently admitted reluctantly, "I ought to warn you. This Miller, the man who was driving the other car, might ask for a jury trial."

"Oh, Dick, no!" Her voice was weak with terror.

"He might. If he can exonerate himself, or prove that Ariel was even partly in the wrong."

Her heart pounded, raced—pounded again. They were getting out of Dick's car now at the City hall.

"Dick, will they find out that she was at Monterey with those boys?"

"They might."

"They shan't! I'll have her lie," Gail said fiercely. "Dick, don't you see that with every one here—every one in Clipperville—she'll be ruined! They'll think she's the sort of girl who runs around to hotels with boys," Gail began, in an agony.

"If the case against Miller is strong enough they may dismiss the charge against Ariel," Dick pursued after a moment. "Shall we—" he moved his head toward the building—"shall we go in?"

"Just a moment!" Gail had caught at his hands. "Are you sure we can't save her—can't say that Buddy was driving?" she stammered, delaying him.

LET'S GO HOME

By BRASWELL DRUE DEEN
U. S. Representative from Georgia.

THERE are many reasons why the house and senate should quickly adjourn this session of the Seventy-fourth congress. Chief among the reasons is the fact that more than 20 of our colleagues—to be exact, 20—are now either in hospitals or at their homes suffering from heart trouble or a nervous breakdown. This congress has worked long, and faithfully, and well, and, personally, I insist that the senate bring its business quickly to an end so that we may agree on the matters that must be agreed upon between the house and the senate, and that all future hearings on house bills, many of which I am for, be extended until a session in the fall or the next session beginning in January. This share-the-wealth, soak-the-rich and save-the-poor legislation, some of which I am in favor of, can wait six months longer, because the rich will not get too rich in a few more months, and the wealth can then be shared and the poor are being taken care of now, and I am personally appealing to the membership of the house to let us adjourn this session immediately.

THE SANE LIFE

By DR. HAROLD WILLIS DODD
President, Princeton University.

THE devastation of the World War and its catastrophic aftermath have been interpreted by some as revealing the emptiness of accepted values and the need for newly fabricated loyalties if one is to be modern and free. But every man needs something to live by and to live for, and those who have jettisoned received standards perforce turn to strange gods most astonishingly bizarre and fanciful.

In the look ahead which today I urge you to take, be sure to find a place for intellectual and cultural interests outside your daily occupation. It is necessary that you do so if this business of living is not to turn to dust and ashes in your mouth. Moreover, do not overlook the claims of religion as the explanation of an otherwise unintelligible world.

It is not the fast tempo of modern life that kills but the boredom, a lack of strong interest and failure to grow that destroy. It is the feeling that nothing is worth while that makes men ill and unhappy.

BRITISH RECOVERY

By STANLEY BALDWIN
Prime Minister, Great Britain.

WE ARE being considered for not having any considered plan. I have never been a slave of a word. If there is a word that has been ridden to death today it is the word plan. I have seen nothing of planning in any foreign country that would lead me to think it is a universal panacea. I don't exactly know what plan is. For some kinds of plans there are books and pamphlets undertaking to cure unemployment.

I have never promised to cure unemployment. I have taken risks for unemployment. I threw away an office and an election because I was convinced that among things necessary to help check growing unemployment were tariffs. I never promised to cure unemployment and I shall never stand on a platform with anybody who does promise it. I think I can say of our action during the time we have been in office that we have made a considerable contribution toward it.

AMBITIOUS NATIONS

By NICHOLAS MURRAY BUTLER
Chairman, Carnegie Endowment for International Peace.

IT HAS become clear that treaties count for nothing in the face of national ambition and of what the ruling statesmen regard as national security. Therefore Japan is moving steadily toward the extension of her control over a vast portion of Asia. Therefore Italy is feeling her way toward the acquisition of new territory and new economic opportunity in Africa, while Germany is, so to speak, tossing in her bed, stirred with ambition to extend her authority toward the south and the southeast.

To deal with a complicated and very real situation such as this will tax the world's wisdom and the world's statesmanship to the utmost. These conditions, serious as they are, become more so when it is realized how closely they are bound up with the various revolutionary movements now actively going forward in the fields of economics, politics and the social order.

PREPARING FOR WAR

By DAVID LLOYD GEORGE
Former British Prime Minister.

THE situation from the viewpoint of peace is in many respects worse than before 1914.

I was in the business before 1914. Then every one as now was talking about peace, but every one just as now was preparing feverishly for war. The nations were maneuvering for war positions. Watch—for it is going on now. Each of them was as certain as now that their conduct was actuated by a sincere desire for peace and that their armaments were intended exclusively for defense.

SLIMNESS ALONG WITH SIMPLICITY

Pattern 9350

Every line in this dress is cleverly contrived to "lie" about your weight. The unbroken line from shoulder to hip adds to your height, the diagonal closing "slims" you down and the panel skirt gives you a trim hip line. Why it makes you "feel" slimmer, just to look at this frock. Notice how cleverly it avoids waistline emphasis, but adds four buttons for smart accents. About the house, you'll appreciate the unhampered freedom of the easy fitting sleeve and bodice. Run up several in printed cottons for about-the-house and make a dark printed foulard for smart town wear.

Pattern 9350 may be ordered only in sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48 and 50. Size 36 requires 3 1/2 yards 36-inch fabric.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, the STYLE NUMBER and SIZE. Complete, diagrammed sew chart included.

Send your order to Sewing Circle Pattern Department, 232 West Eighteenth street, New York.

Aletheia Chamberlain. Marie M. Ogden.

Dear Friends Everywhere:

Our work is beginning to gain momentum again, due to a discovery we have made on the mountain top, and because some of our loyal and faithful friends have added their support to ours in a more substantial way than has been in evidence for many months.

We were told some weeks ago that as we came into this new month things would change for us, and so it seems to be, for not only are we able to see more clearly ahead in a financial way, but we are making progress in a spiritual sense. It is a metaphysical Truth that for every hour, or experience of depression, or of seeming failure, there is a corresponding period of "up-lift" and he greater the downward movement the greater the opposite turn will be.

While it seemed as if the whole world was set against us because of the many adverse conditions we have had to contend with over a period of many months, the experiences of the past few weeks were more trying and of such nature as caused wonderment and heartache. Every so often during the past several years there has come such time, and as we look back over these experiences and recall the darker moments we know this too, to be a fact. BECAUSE OF THEM it was necessary to look more definitely to the Divine Source for Guidance and only through such manner of living was it possible to pass through the darker moments.

We firmly believe that these experiences come to us to compel a more direct contact with the Great Souls who are guiding the Divine plan from the Unseen Realms, and if we did not have these temporary setbacks we would somehow fail in our efforts now. If you could know how carefully we follow each and every word of guidance even in the smallest detail of our work you would better understand what we mean when we speak of these Unseen Friends, for to us they are as real as each and every one in human form.

In an article below we will quote from an eastern writer who predicts that during the years ahead there will be a definite turn about in regard to the affairs of those who will make a study of the possibilities in store for us as the "veil" or "dividing line" is cast aside. More and more, people are beginning to give thought to these coming changes, and because at the present time I am enjoying another period of close contact with those in the Higher Realms it is natural to speak of the wonderful opportunities, and the beauties of such form of contact.

In the next News Letter to go forth I am sure that you will find it possible to give to all who are interested some of the unusual recordings of the present period of time. A great peace and calm has settled upon us, and as we look toward the time of arrival of a few who are "on their way to us" so to speak, we give thanks and rejoice over the conditions which exist today which are so much better than was our lot to know last year at this time.

As we enter upon the fall months of this year it will be much less difficult in many ways, and while there will be certain adjustments to be made on the part of all who will come from other environments and habits of living it will not be long before all things will be running smoothly again. Each day and night we continue to give thanks for the blessings which are ours to enjoy, and so life goes on from day to day, as we look toward the final goal of attainment.

Sincerely,

Marie M. Ogden

THE NEXT THREE YEARS
By Alice A. Bailey

From this interesting booklet we quote the following paragraphs of Truth. "To achieve an adequate understanding of the true significance of the present era of world chaos, it is necessary to consider the main lines of thought which are emerging at this time, and which are destined to guide world affairs. Out of the medley of ideas, theories, speculations, religions, churches, cults, sects, etc. two main lines of thought are demonstrating, one of them eventually to die out, the other destined to strengthen and grow until, in turn, gives birth to that formulation of Truth which will suffice for the next age, and which will carry man to a higher pinnacle of the Temple and place his feet on a higher level of conscious unfoldment. * * *

In the course of a few decades, the first of the soul will be established and the work of the introspective thinkers of the mystic and the occult students will be carried forward to the point where soul force will be established as a racial concept and the laws of the soul recognized as superceding (though not abrogating) the laws of man. Spiritual laws and racial laws are kept by a manifesting soul; there is no inclination to break the human laws, for these lesser regulations are included in the greater laws of the spiritual realm. Note: These statements were issued in 1932, and the pamphlet may be had for the asking and is worth reading. Address your request to Mrs. Alice Bailey 11 West 42nd Street, New York City, and please mention this paper when you write.

CHANG LESSNESS

From the Christian Science Monitor we find these likewise true statements: "In the midst of an ever-shifting panorama of world events, amid the chaotic beliefs and apprehensions of material sense, one may often feel a longing to look forward to something stable, something free from fluctuation and uncertainty. * * * "Soul, of Spirit is God, unchangeable and eternal, and man co-exists with and reflects Soul, for man is God's image." * * *

"Truth changes not. * * * Personal opinion may bluster and assert a firm faith in its own power of discernment, but it is profitless, and is one of the primary causes of the seeming confusion in the world today. * * * Let us strive to uncover the deception of mortal sense, to understand its nothingness, and, fixing our gaze on the changeless realities of God and that which He made like unto Himself, we shall wake to see the new Heaven and the new earth within 'and around us.' * * *

UNIVERSAL RELIGION

In this age of reason people are beginning to outgrow all opinions and limitations. The death-knell of dogmas, creeds and fanaticism has been sounded, and the sincere seekers after Truth are brought near to the threshold of that universal religion which is nameless. So says another writer in speaking of these changing times, in regard to people's thinking, and he further says: "Let us open our eyes and behold the divine glory of Souls!" How many writers and speakers in all walks of life are calling attention to the Soul. * * * Even Science is trying to understand, through investigation, the intricate working of the inner body, and will one day come to accept the truth about Soul Power. We are living in a most interesting age and we are only at the very beginning of things in regard to understanding some of the great inner secrets of life. All forms of socialized religion, creeds, occult and metaphysical teachings must resolve into one by discarding the intricate and complicated parts and retaining only the simpler truths which all peoples can understand and follow. So will we have a Universal Religion based on the two commandments and the most simple forms of living which in turn will restore peace and the harmony which is so vital to man's existence.

The world is better off without Your utter ignorance and morbid doubt.

If you have faith in God or man or self, Say so; if not, push back up on the shelf.

Of silence, all your thoughts till faith shall come; No one will grieve because your lips are dumb.

—Ella Wheeler Wilcox

THE REBIRTH OF A SOUL

I shall ever remember the experiences of the ensuing hours, and to set them down in words is difficult since it is impossible to give the detail with full knowledge of the "thought-form-communication" during those first few hours. Realizing that something of unusual nature had occurred I naturally asked for "Guidance" and for "some sign" to reassure me that all was well.

Absolutely nothing came during the first hour, and it enhanced my feeling of alarm, to such degree that I could not shake off the chill which enveloped me. Picture, if you can the anxiety and wonderment. The only impression that came was the strong desire to "hold fast to the hands of our loved one" which I did, although at times it seemed as if she was being literally torn from me. I attributed this to my own condition as I would "shake with cold, or the seemingly nervous chill" and it was not until a few days later that I learned how CLOSE WE WERE TO FAILURE DURING THOSE NIGHT HOURS.

During the second hour I "heard" the words: "HOLD FAST," and later: "ALL THROUGH THE NIGHT." So, I prepared for a long vigil, and told the nurse and husband that I expected to remain in that position indefinitely, and would not leave until I was told to do so. I was also told to "watch for a sign of five pulse beats" and naturally, I thought that when they occurred our patient would make return to life and at that time my vigil would end.

It was not until the third hour had passed that I was given instruction how to overcome my seemingly nervous condition, and it may here be said that it is only on rare occasions that I suffer in any way from the cold, so could not understand the continuous chill which enveloped me. Finally I was "told how to gain composure through a deep breathing exercise" and during the first attempt a certain gain was made. Was told to repeat the effort, and again was improvement made. The third attempt brought success, and from that moment I was in absolute control of the situation and it seemed then as if I somehow understood that certain forces were at work trying to force me to relinquish my hold, and thus bring defeat to our efforts of the past weeks.

A wonderful calm, seemed to replace the tenseness of the first few hours, and while it may seem again as if we were digressing it is necessary to relate these experiences in order to convey to you the manner in which the "Unseen Forces" work at such times. I was grateful indeed, to the "friend" who advised me to "Hold Fast" for it strengthened my belief that some Unseen Force of detrimental nature was also at work which prevented me from making the usual contact.

Each hour I would say a few words to the waiting ones who came into the room to learn of the progress being made but little they knew how I was suffering. It was hard enough for them as it was. They were silent, did in their show of patience—and they, too, seemed to realize that I was equally hard for me, on whom fell the full responsibility for the moment. It may also be stated here that another member of our group of faithful ones at this inner point of contact was also intensely interested in the daily care of our patient and was assisting the husband in various ways during the difficult tasks of each day. I seemed to feel that he, too, should assemble with the two in the outer room and when they made their 4:30 call I asked that he be included. So our number was increased, thus adding another "good vibrations" which I knew would be helpful, as we progressed into the daylight hours of watchful waiting.

During the fifth hour I again "made contact" with our "friends in the unseen realms" and so began an explanation of the condition which prevailed with such force from the so-called "Dark Forces" who were determined to make me release my hold and thereby make more complete their work of the moment. I was told that they had taken possession of our loved one and that she had submitted in desperation to them, at the moment when she gave expression to a phrase which I did not learn of until several days later, but which was the final word she spoke about fifteen minutes before her husband came for me. "She said: 'I can't stand it any longer,' and with that she seemed to sink into a coma which took on the appearance of death, and which would be so pronounced by any nurse or doctor, unless they were familiar with a finer form of life within. Such form is not unlike that of "plant life" which BREATHE AND GROWS" although we are unable to understand the processes at work.

During the next period of time I was also told how the "Soul-Spirit" had taken flight although the "Silver Life Cord" had not been severed. To some of our readers this will be easily understood, but for the sake of those who know little or nothing about this important and invisible attachment I will explain that it may be likened to the invisible something in the Telephone wires, through which is transferred the power to send messages or current in whatever form is needed from one point of contact to another, or to provide light, or heat according to the desired need. It is invisible to the physical eye, just as are other forms of vibratory substance such as the aura of light spoken of in earlier columns of "Our Corner."

Suffice to say that I have kept in diary form each and every word of explanation given to me during the hourly, and later the daily contacts with these Unseen Friends, and they will be prepared as supplementary notes for all who may care to have them for future study. We must now proceed with our narrative concerning the early morning hours. During the ninth hour I was told that the "danger mark" had passed, and that the enemy had receded, although they were still lurking in the background ready to take up their work again if I weakened in any way. Was told to "renew my faith and to carry on with greater courage as we entered upon the tenth hour."

It was indeed a most difficult period in all ways, for the same position had to be maintained and it required careful concentration to receive the information being relayed by the Unseen Friends, which also included instruction for the later hours of the day after the "sign of release", which would allow temporary freedom and an opportunity to speak to the loved ones in the outer room of the experiences of the night hours.

A MODERN LADY'S PRAYER

Let me be free for some part of each day
From all the social ties that hem me in
Let me find time in open fields to stray
Give me some respite from the card game's din,
Protect me from all wornout megrimment.
I see my friend's vain searching eyes
I hear their little social lies.
Give me a toilsome Paradise
That I may know content.

Give me a chance to read some simple book,
To have the time to daily be alone,
To wander barefoot in a shaded brook
And hear it murmur Nature's montone.
Allow me freedom and a wandering mood.
I hate to please with each new hour,
I yearn for peace, contentment, power;
Please grant me then, that sought for dower,
That boon of solitude.

—Louise Comes Revue

A MOTHER'S PRAYER

A sacred trust has been given me,
A soul that will live through eternity
Help me, Lord, my task to complete,
To lead and guide these faltering feet.
Help me train these tiny hands,
To gladly do what thy will commands,
Let me so train his childish mind,
To make him generous good and kind,
To do his duty, day by day,
And always choose the nobler way.
I am honored, Lord, by thee,
Thou didst entrust a soul to me.

—Minnie L. Keen

A CREED

There is a destiny that makes us brothers;
None goes his way alone.
All that we send into the lives of others
Comes back into our own.

I care not what his temples or his creeds,
One thing holds firm and fast.
That into his fateful heap of days
and deeds,
The soul of a man is cast.

Edwin Markham.

Look to this day!
For it is life, the very life of life.
In its brief course, lie all the varieties and realities of your existence:
The bliss of growth;
The glory of action;
The splendor of beauty;
For yesterday is already a dream and tomorrow is only a vision;
But today, well lived makes every yesterday
A dream of happiness, and every tomorrow
a vision of hope.
Look well, therefore, to this day!
Such is the salvation of the dawn!

DRY VALLEY NEWS

On Sunday, at 6 A. M. a new Sabbath-day service was inaugurated at "Our Place of Abode," which is to be a permanent service for all future time; though later, it will be held at the Community Chapel, to be erected in the Middle Section. The service was conducted by Our Leader Marie M. Ogden who opened it with an interlude of piano music followed by a short period of silent meditation. Elmer Pesbak led in prayer with members repeating the designated prayer used on all occasions, and the singing of the doxology. A selected hymn, with our Musical Director, Elva Sprague at the piano was sung. Then the reading of Chapter 148 in the Aquarian Gospel by Mary Cameron. Another hymn closed the meeting followed by a moment of silence as we awaited the final benediction. As in a Biblical reference, (Matthew 26:30), "and when they had sung a hymn they went out," feeling the uplift of Spirit from the Special Blessing of the Master. All members were present except those located on the Mountain Top. Later in the day David de Bruine with Elwyn Blake of Monticello proceeded to the Mountain Top Mining Camp for a friendly visit to the Bush family and also to investigate the progress concerning a new venture which is expected later to add to our resources, though possibly not for some little time to come. Meantime, in spite of the many recent obstacles in our pathway, we are again slowly starting up the hill of progress, some of our impediments having been removed by Divine Intervention * * * at least, so it seems to us.

The logging contract has been fulfilled and the required logs all removed from the near-by mountain, thanks to two of the men and one of the women, who proved a valuable aid.

Two of the men are aiding the Community along the line of financial recovery by taking outside contracts in carpentry work. One, with the CCC's, and one with a private party in Monticello. And so, day by day, and little by little, in spite of any and all obstacles, seeming or real, slow progress is made * * * for which we give thanks to the Giver of all Good Gifts and "the Restorer of Paths to dwell in." * * *

Our only visitors during the week were Mr. Clarence A. Frost, of Monticello, who came for a short visit one evening, and the well-drillers who are eager to finish their work in the Middle Section * * * as our funds will permit of this work.

(Popular Science)—Because an observant scientist noticed a heavy rust on a lantern during a chance visit to a mushroom grower's cave, American dairymen may now produce a cheese that is said to vie in flavor with the prized Roquefort of France. The telltale rust convinced Prof. W. B. Combs, of the University of Minnesota, that sandstone caverns of the Mississippi river bluffs matched European caves in providing just the right temperature and humidity for ripening the greenish-blue mold that gives this delicacy its piquant flavor. The natural humidity in the caves eliminates the need of expensive air-conditioning in commercial cheese factories. As a trial, he had 10,000 pounds of Roquefort-type cheese prepared from cow's milk and ripened in one of the caverns. The experiment has been successful, yielding a product of finer flavor, selling for 30 cents a pound instead of $1 or more, the imported price.

Detroit—After a vicious, large gray rat had bitten two boys about the arms and hands and wounded their father on the shoulder, he told the police: "I never saw such a thing in my life. Big and wild! I hit him a solid wallop but he just rolled over and then came at me. I kept swinging with a broom and wrecked most of the kitchen before I killed him." The two boys were sent to the hospital.

Your mind turns gratefully to the 147th Psalm, verse 20, when you consider how safe we are in a world of earthquakes, volcanoes, floods, pests, 40 or 50 die here and we are horrified. Shanghai reports "a million inhabitants of west Shantung made homeless by floods covering 6,500 square miles, 500 villages under water." Japan's rich island, Formosa, is again shaken by earthquake, many killed, houses demolished, telephone and telegraph lines down. We should be grateful and humble, considering our mercies.

Los Angeles, (Idaho Statesman) With pointed criticism for such legal instruments as the NIRA and AAA, the American Bar Association went solidly on record in Los Angeles against "changes in the essential lines of the Constitution by process of corruption of its text." If the legislative, executive and judicial branches are to be changed, let it be by voting. "A brake must be put on this contagious fever for placing 'business' under a license system, such as was pending before congress." "There are those who believe in absolutism in government—and who have a 'scrap of paper' attitude toward the Constitution." "This sets the wheels of government moving in reverse gear. The servant becomes the master and the right to earn a living becomes subject to the servant's whim, and caprice as he professes to apply some vague and variable statutory standard."

Billings, Mont.—Flames which leaped from exploding oil tanks at the Yale Corporation refinery left four persons dead and a pall of destruction in their wake. Smoke from the fire which destroyed ten filled oil tanks, cast a smudge over the Yellowstone valley. The blasts were heard for miles.

During the depression real and permanent farm progress has been made by farmer-owned, farmer-controlled cooperative marketing associations.

PERSONAL OPINION

(By Elwyn Blake)

A letter from Huey P. Long, of Louisiana states that two widely circulated reports about the Louisiana senator are utterly untrue.

Senator Long denies the charge that he is a man of great wealth and also denies that he has vast quantities of speeches and literature printed at government expense. He also states that if he sold all of his possessions, he could not pay one-half his debts.

We never before thought that we had much in common with the Louisiana senator, but now we are convinced that we have. Our financial standing seems to be about the same. However, Huey seems to be able to handle considerable cash and to be able to obtain vast quantities of share the wealth and other propaganda and to dress as a "fashion show" as the newspapers recently expressed it, and so we are obliged to concede that our only real similarity is in being able to buy more than we can readily pay for.

In conjunction with the senator's letter came a large sheet of paper printed on both sides, which advocated the formation of a Share the Wealth club, which would meet with our entire approval if we did not fear that the leaders of such a movement are too short sighted and to weak to preserve the wealth making machinery and to keep it going.

Whenever the wealth of a nation is divided, it will soon be dissipated and all will be in poverty unless some way is found whereby it will continue to be evenly divided.

We believe that wealth, when identified as money, will naturally concentrate in the hands of the money worshippers. This idea is expressed in the tale of the Jew, the Irishman and the German.

Each was offered a gift amounting not to exceed $5,000. dollars.

The Irishman and the German each wanted the $5,000 in cash, but the Jew, when he saw the money the other two had in their possession became excited and said, "Just give me $10 worth of merchandise and about 20 minutes alone with each of those fellows." That's all some fellows need, is some wealthy customers and a little merchandise, and soon the money is in the hands of only one.

RANGE CONTROL

The Advisory Committee on range administration has been in session for several days, passing on the merits of each application for a grazing permit.

The deliberations of this body composed of 18 representative stockmen, may well be the turning point in the economic situation in southeastern Utah. If a fair and equitable policy is followed toward all concerned, an attempt is being made in that direction, then there may come a situation in which every man will feel secure and will be assured of a fair decision in every controversy.

If, on the other hand, the more powerful interests are able to slowly squeeze out the smaller interests, contention and strife will follow even among the larger faction, even though they unite against the weaker interests. This would ultimately result in as bad a condition as was prevalent before the Taylor grazing act went into effect.

COLLECTIVE FARMS

There are two distinct schools of thought in San Juan county in either of which may work out in practice. One of these is that which believes the country should go back to cattle and sheep range, the other believes that greater good may result from large groups of farmers working cooperatively, and thereby making the lands of San Juan county produce a living for a greater number of people.

It is true that many have failed to make a living on our nature-farming areas. The question is, would these people have failed had they had proper machinery to work with and had been able to stick to their farming operations rather than having to spend most of their time off the farm making a living, and so never really tried to farm the land.

On the other hand, with conservation of forage plants and development of watering places, this county could undoubtedly become one of the greatest livestock producing sections of the west.

It seems to us that whatever course is taken (and it seems that stock-raising will have its day) full cooperation of everyone should be given in order to really prove the new order of things either right or wrong, solely on its merits.

Why not have both a cattle raising area within the county and a farm area, governed and administered by a central body, thus proving which scheme is the more feasible?

Perhaps we will have both types of development side by side. We expect to see them, and soon.

There are at least 235,000,000 persons in the world who do not comment on the weather each day. They are the Mohammedans, who never remark about the day's atmospheric conditions lest they appear to criticize Allah's arrangements.

CONTROL OF CREDIT A BASIC QUESTION

Economist Describes Conflict Between Opposing Social View-points on Government Bank.

Agitation for government banking is a phase of the conflict between our present "personal competitive enterprise system" in America and the "compulsory state collective security system" of several European States, Virgil Jordan, President National Industrial Conference Board, says in an article in a recent issue of "Banking" published by the American Bankers Association.

"They involve irreconcilable principles of human conduct and philosophy of life and the conflict between them is the key to the economic, social and political struggles of today," Mr. Jordan says.

The enterprise system of which "the development of the United States has been the unparalleled example, depends for its motive power of progress upon the inexhaustible reservoir of energy in individual desire for personal advancement in prosperity, but it guarantees nothing to the individual save freedom of opportunity," the article says in part.

The collectivist security system, he says, "places all emphasis upon the maintenance of a minimum standard of living for the mass without regard to the creative power of the individual, quite simply the security system involves the modern form of the philosophy of the slave society." He continues:

A Sign of the Times
"The many-sided movement toward governmental banking, deposit insurance and currency management is the most direct and decisive expression of the universal instinctive search for security which is the sign of the times. In America our so-called social security legislation is an important indication of the drift away from the enterprise system toward a collectivist security system with concentration of authority in a central Federal government."

"The nationalization of credit is crucial and indispensable for complete state control of the complex industrial and business structure of this country. The drive toward government banking and monetary control is most determined because the relation of the state to credit goes to the root of the enterprise system. A collective security system is inconceivable without nationalization of credit. An enterprise system is inconceivable with it."

Under a collective security system, based on government banking the controls "lie solely in the hands of a few persons and depend upon their judgment, will or caprice," Mr. Jordan says, adding that it is they who must determine "upon the basis of some predetermined plan or upon pure political expediency of the moment, what lines of industry and even what individual enterprises shall have access to the credit reservoir." The state, he says, has the power of life and death over all enterprise that utilizes credit.

"Every government is an organ of party power and must respond to the will of the party that put it in power," the Jordan article says. "Under unchecked government operation it is an inescapable tendency of every currency to depreciate and for credit to expand. However much it may be in the interest of the nation, deflation is too dangerous politically for any government to undertake it deliberately."

"In the end government banking and currency management resolve themselves simply into the use of credit as a political instrument of power, and this instrument tends to be used in the long run for expropriation of the savings of the community."

SOCIETY

LADIES ENTERTAIN MOTHERS
Mrs. Arthur Anderson and Mrs. Geo. Barton entertained Friday afternoon at the Anderson home in honor of their mothers, Mrs. Annie Bailey and Mrs. Sarah Perkins. The following program was rendered. Solo by Mildred Black accompanied by Naomi Black; a musical number by Maxine Redd at the piano and Norma Perkins playing the violin, and a reading by Thora Barton. A very tasty luncheon was served.

BRIDGE PARTY

Mrs. Hans Jensen entertained at bridge this week in honor of Mrs. Inez Adams and Miss Dorothy Redd, who have been visiting here for some time. There were about twenty guests present, who report a very enjoyable time.

COOTIE PARTY

Saturday evening a card party was given at the home of Mrs. Rodney Peterson in honor of Mrs. Ethel Lancaster, who has been visiting her parents here for several days. The game "Cootie" was enjoyed by the sixteen ladies present. Mrs. Will Hyde won first prize, while Mrs. Frank Redd was awarded the consolation prize.

A delicious and substantial luncheon was served.

DAUGHTERS OF PIONEERS TO ENTERTAIN

The Monticello camp of the Daughters of Utah Pioneers will meet at the church Wednesday, afternoon August 21, at 3 o'clock.

A special program committee and refreshment committee are planning a very nice party in honor of Monticello pioneer ladies over 70 years of age.

MEN ENTERTAIN WIVES ON MOUNTAIN

Wednesday evening a group of men and their wives went to the mountain where the gentlemen prepared the evening meal. The ladies had nothing to do with the selection of the menu and so the meal was a complete surprise to them.

The party was composed of Mr. and Mrs. Horace Allred, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Christensen, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Adams, and Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey Black.

Ed. Rhodes was in town last week.

WORD ANALYSIS

REVELATION—to reveal, or make known something which has been previously concealed. To reveal something which has been kept secret. The act of communicating divine truth, through words, signs, laws, or through the inspiration of the Holy Spirit. The manifestation of God to man. This manifestation, or revelation, is becoming more common each day, and many there are who are receiving of this form of inspiration, through writing, through meditation and through contact with others who are in perfect attunement with the Divine Source of all things.

BEST RECIPE

DROP CAKES—3 table sps. melted butter, put in a cup and add 2 unbeaten eggs, and fill with milk. Sift 1½ cups flour, 1 cup sugar, Pinch salt, 2 full teasps. baking powder and pinch salt. Add to first mixture, stir well, flavor with vanilla and bake. If too thick add little more milk. May be baked as drop cakes, layer or loaf cake.

INDIAN YOUTHS HAVE 4-H CLUB TRAINING

Indian boys and girls of the Uintah and Ouray reservation in the Uintah basin will receive training in 4-H clubs this year as a result of an agreement between the Indian agency and the Extension Service of the Utah State Agricultural college.

About 200 "red skins" between the ages of 12 and 18 years enrolled in poultry, beef, dairying, swine, gardening and foods projects, according to the extension agent at the reservation. For several years a small number of Indians have been connected with 4-H clubs, but this is the first year that such a large-scale cooperation has been entered into between the two services of the federal government.

Enrollment in the regular 4-H clubs throughout the state totals over 5,000. In San Juan county there are 61 Indians enrolled in 4-H work.

Timpanogos Cave American Fork Canyon

This is one of a series of articles to appear in this newspaper, sponsored by the Salt Lake Advertising Club, associated clubs of southern and central Utah, and chambers of commerce; part of a program to point out Utah's resources so that local people will "Know Utah Better".

By AMOS JENKINS

Pronounced by many world travelers the most scenic stretch of road for its length in any country, the hour's drive from Timpanogos Cave, national monument in American Fork canyon, to Vivian park in Provo canyon via the Aspen grove scenic loop offers to the tourist some of the most inspiring scenery to be had in the entire west.

Timpanogos Cave, situated eight miles from American Fork and 21 miles from the city of Provo, is not only a national monument famous for the delicate beauty and coloring of its coral-like stalactite and stalagmite formations, but a strategically-located base of operations from which the tourist can launch into a multitude of summer diversions.

To dwell for a time on the cave itself, which is actually unfamiliar to thousands of Utahns, those who have not treated themselves to the rainbow delights which await the mile-long ascent of the cave-trail are missing the geological wonder of the state.

According to literature of the Wasatch national forest which has supervision of the cave, Timpanogos Cave was accidentally discovered in 1915 by the small son of a mining prospector who literally fell into the cave. The existence of the huge cavern was kept a family secret for five years, but finally the approximate location was inadvertently disclosed, and in August, 1921, the cave was rediscovered by a hiking party. The United States Forest Service immediately initiated protective and development features which met with the generous support of local citizens.

Now the cave is completely equipped with passageways, stairways, and electric lights. The formations, instead of being massive and smooth as they are in many other caves, form delicate branches, some of which resemble coral. Many beautiful effects, such as the Great Heart of Timpanogos, the Jewell Box, and the Chocolate Falls are enhanced by the electric lights. A national monument by presidential proclamation on October 14, 1922, the cave is protected from all acts of vandalism by an Act of Congress dated June 8, 1906.

The formations, together with the mile of nature study trail leading to the cave, over which the flora and geology have been identified and posted, are of particular educational interest.

The auto tourist may drive to the cave camp ground, located near the base of the trail. Here a public camp ground is provided where pure water, shade, tables, benches, stoves, and fuel are all furnished free to cave and canyon visitors. A store is maintained at the camp grounds where lunches and regular meals, foodstuffs, and tourist supplies may be obtained.

Guide service is maintained year-long, but because of snow, there are few visitors between November and April. Admission to the cave, including competent guide service, is 50 cents for adults and 25 cents for children. The cave is open from 8 a. m. to 5 p. m. A group of public-spirited citizens from American Fork and Pleasant Grove (via which the cave can also be reached) manage the cave with the co-operation and supervision of local forest officers. All receipts are devoted to maintaining and developing the cave for public benefit. The cave is almost 600 feet in length.

Leaving Timpanogos cave for Aspen grove, the highway loop encircles Timpanogos Mountain, which is the objective of several thousand hikers each summer in what is believed to be the largest community or mass hike of its kind in the world, with participants coming from all portions of the globe.

The ride down the glacier ending at the edge of Emerald Lake, should be especially thrilling this year, in the opinion of forest rangers, due to the unusual amount of snow packed in the lofty heights.

Aspen grove, the famous summer camping ground where the tourist can stay for a day or for a month, and where the ambitious hiker can reach snow in half an hour's brisk climbing, is the starting point for the annual hike.

CCC workers have constructed a new outdoor stage of stone and cement in the theater of pines, and an amphitheater of seats has been erected. The entire theater has been wired with electric lights since the 1934 hike.

Following the program, most of the hikers curl up in blankets, waiting until dawn to commence the hike proper. Many, however, are wont to make it a midnight hike, leaving upon completion of the program, and attempting to make the towering heights at sunrise, whence comes a rare vista of orange and golden light, effulgent and iridescent upon the glowing slopes of Mount Timp itself and upon the misty summits of adjoining mountains to reward the all-night climbers.

In connection with announcement of this year's hike, Mr. Romney wishes to emphasize the fact that Mt. Timpanogos is a national monument and a game preserve. Carrying of firearms is forbidden. Under protection from hunters, a fine herd of elk has grown steadily larger each year; these with deer, bear and other wild life make the famous mountain a veritable haunt for nature and animal lovers.

Getting back to Aspen Grove, it is understood that this camping spot is now enhanced by tables, stone fire-places and seats, toilets and running water facilities, mostly installed by CCC workers under forest service supervision. Tourists are especially invited to stay for a day or month. All facilities are free of charge.

Continuing south from Aspen grove, the road joins the Provo canyon highway at a point just above the Vivian park bridge and considerably below the site of the proposed Deer Creek dam.

The entire drive around the loop from either American Fork or Aspen Grove requires but an hour's continuous driving and is completely safe, being maintained by the forest service.

Motorists who were not able to complete the loop due to late-melting snow are advised by C. J. Olson, supervisor of the Wasatch national forest, that the road is now ship-shape and open all the way around for travel.

The easiest climb is up from the Provo side, going down via American Fork canyon.

An interesting side-trip for the motorist is that to Stewart's flat, located between Aspen Grove and the Provo canyon highway. After leaving Provo canyon at Wildwood, the motorist takes the first road to the left about a mile and a quarter from Wildwood. The by-road permits travel by automobile only about another mile and a quarter. Here machines must be abandoned for a mile hike, but, according to Professor Harrison R. Merrill of the Brigham Young University faculty, it's worth it.

At Stewart's flat, the Utah State Young Women's Mutual Improvement Association has built an M.I.A. home near Stewart's Cascade, a tumbling torrent of water which forms a part of a Provo River tributary, rising in Stewart's peak. It is but a short hike to the Cascade from the M.I.A. home, and the hiker is rewarded by as pristine a nature spot as exists in the Rocky Mountains.

Mr. Reader:—Do your part to advertise Utah. Please send this article to some friend or relative or business associate out of the State.

SALT LAKE CITY, UT.—Automobile inspection station certificates must be displayed on the lower right hand corner of the windshield it was announced by R. W. Groo, superintendent of state highway patrol. On vehicles which have no windshield, the certificates must be displayed on a place clearly visible from the outside. These provisions are fixed by state law.

POCATELLO, IDA.—Rebuilding of 400 box cars is underway in the local railroad shops.

WILDER, IDA.—Farmers of this section are somewhat alarmed over the epidemic of brain fever in horses. It is reported that there are now a number of cases.

MOSCOW, IDA.—Twenty-one blister rust camps are being established in the Clarkia and Elk river sections east of here. There will be 1200 men in the areas surrounding this section selected from the relief rolls for work in the camps, according to the IERA offices.

Varying Advantages of Country and City Life

It is well for persons who go to the country or to seaside resorts for the summer to remember that the country folk have advantages which are not possible for city residents to have. There is a recognized atmosphere about persons from metropolitan centers which is at variance with villagers, but this does not necessarily mean that they are superior. What it signifies is that opportunities for development are so different that each knows a different world. The person from the city knows a social life, one of constant mental activity and financial pressure. It is not a restful life.

Diversions in the city are, for the most part, artificial. That is, they are man made. There are lectures, theaters, concerts and cultural advantages which are possible only where there is sufficient population to support such ventures. The constant contact with history in the making, and with people, gives a wide outlook, or it should, on such matters, and a certain polish which comes with constant association with other persons. They have an ease in company. These are some of the advantages of city life.

The person in the country has natural advantages. He has time for thought. He has the opportunity to watch the seasons change from one beauty to another, to know birds, and trees, flowers, and fruits. The book of nature is his to study first hand. He has the advantages of pure air, of quiet nights, and of the whole range of benefits which the city person goes into the country to get, on vacations. There are many scholarly country people, and real thinkers. From the viewpoint of healthy surroundings and natural advantages, the balance is all in favor of the country dweller.

It seems a pity that there should not be a real mutual appreciation of each group of persons by each group. Instead of the cleavage which is found between city and country folk. Each has a little air of superiority. As a matter of fact, each group has a great deal to contribute to the other. During the summer there is a chance to get acquainted which is not available to such a degree in cold weather. Vacation time is here. © Bell Syndicate—WNU Service.

CAMP MEETING'S VALUE

The annual Desplaines camp meeting, outdoor assembly under Methodist Episcopal auspices, is one of the most interesting religious phenomena of the Chicago area, S. J. Duocan-Clark writes, in the Chicago Daily News. For seventy-six years it has maintained a tradition that roots in the early beginnings of Methodism in the United States—the days when Lorenzo Dow, unique American apostle of the faith, was preaching his message with quaint and compelling eloquence. In regions where churches were few and opportunities for concerted worship rare, the camp meeting crudely served the spiritual needs of the people.

Despite much that has been written and said in criticism and ridicule, it was a vital force in fashioning a better, and sturdier life. Its theology was apt to be narrow, its appeal emotional, but it turned the hearts and minds of men toward thoughts of God.

IT'S BLAZING

inside your motor!

That's why you need Germ Processed Oil for safe lubrication—it maintains high film strength under extreme heat!

The heat of your cylinder walls ranges from 350° to 425° in Summer weather.

When you drive at 50 miles an hour, your wrist pin bearings heat up to 350°.

Your connecting rod bearings, at a speed of 50 miles an hour, reach a heat of 250°.

In hot weather, your crankcase "runs a temperature" over 225°.

WITH heats of 225° to 425° in your motor, you must have oil that maintains high film strength under extreme temperatures to get safe lubrication. Otherwise, the lubricating film ruptures and the bearings and cylinders suffer damaging wear.

Plain mineral oils have little film strength and oils over-refined by new cleansing processes have even less. As motor heat goes up, these oils rapidly lose film strength.

It's an absolute certainty that you'll get better motor protection with Conoco Germ Processed Motor Oil. Timken machine tests prove that it has 2 to 4 times greater film strength than any plain mineral oil and that heat above 225° does not lessen this advantage.

More proof—supervised road tests were made in identical cars fitted with the new alloy metal bearings used in many 1935 cars. The bearings lubricated with a high-quality plain mineral oil showed 45% more wear than those lubricated with Conoco Germ Processed, the first alloyed oil.

You'll be certain your motor is safely lubricated even at high temperatures if you say "O. K.—Drain" and fill with Germ Processed, the oil with the "Hidden Quart" that never drains away!

Say "OK-Drain" — FILL WITH CONOCO GERM PROCESSED MOTOR OIL

Log Cabin Effect in Crocheted Rug

By GRANDMOTHER CLARK

Log cabins are always picturesque, and the many antiques usually found about the place add much to complete the picture.

We can't all live in cabins, but we can satisfy our antique cravings by giving these ideas some space in our homes.

This "Log Cabin" crocheted rug was developed from the old "Log Cabin" quilt which is known to many of our readers. This model measures 28x42 inches and requires about 4 pounds of rag rug material.

The inner square of 4 triangles is made first. Four elongated pieces of same size form the first row around center, two short and two long pieces form the next or second row. Four pieces of same size from the third row. Four same size triangles fit in corners. Slip-stitch sections together in black and single crochet all around in black. Color scheme may be all brown in light and dark shades or mixed colors. Alternate panels in light and dark shades to give contrast to rows. Measure each section as the work progresses and fit sections into spaces. Rag rug material may vary in weights.

Grandmother Clark's Rug Book No. 24 contains full directions for making this rug, and many others that will interest you. All illustrations in colors. Postpaid, 15c.

Children's Hobbies

It is wise to allow children to choose their own hobbies, as hobbies that are forced upon them often turn out failures. If the mother can arrange it, she should provide a definite place in which the children can exercise their hobbies. If the hobby is the rearing of animals or birds, the mother should impress on the children that their pets are not toys or playthings, and that they must be loved and cared for. There is a greater likelihood of a hobby turning out a success if the mother gives the child to understand that the success or failure of the hobby depends entirely upon the child.

BLANDING

(By Albert R. Lyman)

Mrs. Mary McKeegan gave a town party Wednesday evening for Mrs. Olive H. Smith.

Miss Beverly Duncan of Salt Lake is visiting relatives here.

Joe Redd has undergone a critical operation in Salt Lake, and is reported to have better chances of recovery.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Acre are home from Provo.

Mrs. Lila Palmer and Mrs. Edith Lyman had their 4-H class of girls up to the town pond Friday evening for supper. The class took their blankets with them, stayed all night and cooked their breakfast there.

Dr. I. M. Cohn and George Matice went Saturday on an excursion to Kayenta and Tuba City.

Miss Delia Bayles is conducting a tap dancing class for little girls.

Howard Kartchner, Jr. and Cleon Shumway had a narrow escape from serious trouble when the cinch on the pony they were riding came loose. The Shumway boy got cut on the head, and several painful bruises, and the Kartchner boy a hard kick on the leg but no bones broken.

Forest Ranger Marion Hunt got a wire in the evening to be in the Salt Lake Airport next morning ready to fly to the forest-fire region of Idaho and help fight the flames. He went at once and Mrs. Hunt moved from their Kigaly quarters back to their home in Bluff.

Miss Reene and Allie Lyman have gone on a visit to Provo.

The barracks at the CCC camp are maturing with magic speed. fourteen trucks brought tents and bedding for the new company which is expected, two hundred strong to arrive soon.

The daughters of The Pioneers went from here Thursday to a program in Bluff, where their president, Mrs. Beatrice Nielson, took charge of the proceedings.

Mrs. Olive H. Smith is back from California for a few days. She says she has business there to call her back soon.

Oscar Johnson, Jim Harvey and Mark Lyman came over from La Sal Saturday evening.

Peter M. Shumway is still in the hospital at Moab. He is reported to be doing as well as could be expected for a man of his advanced age.

Mrs. Nora Jones of Monticello was a Blanding visitor Sunday.

Mrs. Luella Nielson of San Louis Valley, is visiting here with her mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Hurst. Mrs. Nielson has six brothers, a sister and many nephews and nieces in Blanding.

The twenty-one youngsters who went last week in the red truck to the Logan temple, report a whale of a time. Traveling, seeing and doing beats books, a mile towards real education.

Mr. and Mrs. Grant Bayles are back from Michigan with the new pick-up for Mrs. Bayles' father, Jos. B. Harris. They had a honey of a trip, and are referring to Chicago, Kansas City and other little villages back there as if they might be as important as Monticello and Blanding.

Advertising

Some goods have to be carefully advertised to make their presence known in the market. Others don't. The self advertising stuff is the best seller, which reminds us:

When you see a car weaving back and forth across the road as it approaches, that is advertising something attractive and on sale in the direction from which that car is coming. That weaving driver has imbedded pretty freely of the attractive stuff. Just drive down off the grade till he passes and be thankful if he doesn't come down to collide with you.

When a fliver travels like old Jehu, turns the corner on two wheels, scrubs off a hub cap on a light pole and crumples the fender of some innocent wayfarer, that means more than print and pictures that the good stuff is for sale not far away.

When you are awakened at 3 a. m. by the voices of men singing with all the pathos and melody of a motherless calf, that is the voice again of free advertising for the best seller on the market.

O some things do advertise themselves wherever they go even like the little black and white visitor who comes frequently to our hen house.

Wm. J. Nix is back from his vacation in the mountains. He went away with a bad case of hay fever and came back with a long string of speckled trout and a victorious smile.

PAINT BUILDINGS TO SELL REFUSE TO SELL THEM

The story is told in one of the northern counties that a family became discouraged with their farmstead and decided to offer it for sale. When the real estate man, with whom they had listed the property, looked it over he informed the owner that $50 spent in paint would add many hundred dollars to the sale value of the place. The buildings were cleaned up and painted and made attractive for sale, but when the woman of the house saw the effect of the paint, she said: "No, we will not sell. Our farm buildings look better than those on surrounding farms that we had thought of purchasing. We will keep it and be happy."

H. E. Blake made a business trip to Moab Wednesday evening, where he had some samples of uranium ore tested.

Mrs. M. L. Coleman and son Dick were visitors in Monticello Tuesday.
